Vectrix AI Income System Starter Kit

The Goal

Build one small online cash flow system:

1. Pick a buyer with a painful problem. 2. Package a simple digital solution. 3. Publish content that attracts that buyer. 4. Send people to a basic offer page. 5. Improve the offer from real feedback.

Do not start with ten ideas. Start with one buyer, one problem, one offer, and one channel.

The Simple System

Buyer problem: Someone wants a result but does not know the steps.

Digital product: A checklist, template, prompt pack, mini guide, swipe file, or execution plan that helps them move faster.

Traffic: Short posts that teach a useful idea and point people toward the product.

Conversion: A direct landing page with a clear promise, clear contents, and a low risk price.

Improvement: Track clicks, replies, objections, and sales. Improve the product weekly.

The 7 Day Plan

Day 1: Pick a buyer Choose one group you understand. Examples: new creators, local service owners, job seekers, beginner freelancers, online sellers, small business operators.

Day 2: Pick a painful problem Find a problem that costs time, money, attention, or confidence. Avoid broad goals. Choose one specific bottleneck.

Day 3: Build the product outline Create a result map. Break the outcome into five to seven steps. Turn each step into a checklist or template.

Day 4: Create the first version Make the simplest useful version. It should solve one narrow problem, not everything.

Day 5: Write the landing page Use the landing page template in this kit. Keep it direct.

Day 6: Publish ten posts Use the content prompts in this kit. Each post should teach, expose a mistake, or show a simple system.

Day 7: Improve from feedback Review replies, clicks, saves, and sales. Keep what creates response. Remove what gets ignored.

What To Avoid

Do not sell vague motivation.

Do not promise income.

Do not copy other people.

Do not make the product huge before anyone wants it.

Do not post content that has no buyer path.

The Rule

Every piece of content should make the right person think one of these:

I need this system.

I am making this mistake.

This person understands the problem.

This would save me time.

This is worth trying today.

Niche And Buyer Picker

Use this to choose a buyer before creating content or a product.

Buyer Options

Write five buyer groups you could understand well.

1. 2. 3. 4. 5.

Pain Filter

For each buyer, answer:

- What result do they want?
- What gets in the way?
- What do they already spend money on?
- What do they search for?
- What do they complain about?
- What would save them time this week?

Pick The Best Buyer

Choose the buyer with the clearest pain and simplest first product.

My buyer:

Their painful problem:

The result they want:

The first product I can build:

Good Starter Niches

AI templates for small business owners

Content systems for creators

Client getting scripts for freelancers

Offer building kits for beginners

Automation checklists for solo operators

Lead magnet templates for service businesses

Bad Starter Niches

Anything too broad, like wealth or success.

Anything that needs proof you do not have.

Anything that requires regulated financial, legal, or medical advice.

Anything where the buyer has no urgent problem.

Offer Builder

Offer Formula

I help [buyer] get [specific result] without [main frustration] using [simple mechanism].

Example:

I help beginner creators turn one idea into a week of useful content without staring at a blank page using a repeatable prompt system.

Fill Yours In

Who it is not for:

Price:

Price Ladder

Starter checklist: 9 to 19 dollars

Template pack: 17 to 49 dollars

Mini system: 29 to 99 dollars

Done with you workshop: 99 to 299 dollars

Service offer: 300 dollars and up

Start low. Prove demand. Improve the product. Raise price later.

Offer Quality Test

Can the buyer understand it in ten seconds?

Can they use it today?

Does it solve one painful problem?

Is the result specific?

Would it save time, money, or effort?

Content Engine

The goal is not to post more. The goal is to create buyer belief.

Five Content Buckets

1. Mistakes Show what beginners are doing wrong.
2. Systems Explain a repeatable process.
3. Examples Show a simple scenario or breakdown.
4. Contrarian Takes Challenge weak advice in the market.
5. Offer Posts Point to the product or lead magnet.

Daily Mix

For 10 posts:

- 3 mistakes
- 3 systems
- 2 examples
- 1 contrarian take
- 1 offer post

Post Templates

Most beginners try to [common mistake]. The better move is [specific move]. This works because [reason].

If I had to build [result] from zero, I would start with [first step], then [second step], then [third step].

The fastest way to validate [idea] is to [simple test]. If nobody responds, fix the offer before building more.

Do not build a product first. Build the buyer path first. Product comes after you know the pain.

One simple online income system: pick one buyer, solve one problem, publish one useful idea daily, send people to one offer.

Content Rules

Be specific.

Teach one idea at a time.

Avoid fake certainty.

Avoid hype.

Avoid dashes.

Do not use hashtags.

Do not use emojis.

Do not ask vague engagement questions.

Landing Page Template

Headline

Get [specific result] without [painful frustration].

Subheadline

A simple starter kit for [buyer] who want to [outcome] using [mechanism].

Who It Is For

This is for people who want a simple first online product system and are willing to execute.

Who It Is Not For

This is not for people looking for guaranteed income, shortcuts, or financial advice.

Call To Action

Download the starter kit and build your first simple buyer path this week.

Guarantee Style Copy

If this does not help you get clearer on your offer and buyer path, do not keep it.

Email Sequence

Email 1: Delivery

Subject: Your AI Income System Starter Kit

Here is the kit.

Start with the buyer picker. Do not skip it. The offer gets easier when the buyer is clear.

Your goal this week is simple:

Choose one buyer.

Solve one problem.

Publish content that points toward one offer.

Email 2: The Mistake

Subject: The mistake that keeps beginners stuck

Most beginners start with a product idea.

That is backwards.

Start with the buyer and the pain. Then build the smallest useful product that removes that pain.

One buyer. One problem. One offer.

Email 3: The System

Subject: The simple buyer path

The path is:

Useful content creates trust.

Trust creates clicks.

A clear offer creates sales.

Feedback improves the product.

Repeat this weekly.

Email 4: The Push

Subject: Build the first version

Do not wait for the perfect product.

Build the version someone can use today.

A checklist that solves one problem is better than a giant course nobody asked for.

Email 5: The Upgrade

Subject: What to improve next

After you publish, watch for:

Replies

Questions

Objections

Clicks

Sales

The market tells you what to fix.

DM Script

Use this when someone replies to your content or asks about the product.

Soft Reply

Appreciate that. The simple version is to pick one buyer, solve one painful problem, and turn the solution into a tiny product people can use today.

Product Mention

I put the full starter system into a kit. It has the buyer picker, offer builder, content templates, and landing page copy.

Qualifying Question

Are you trying to build your first digital product, or are you trying to improve one you already have?

Follow Up

If you want the fastest path, start with the buyer picker first. Most people skip that and end up building something too vague.

Boundary

No income guarantees. The kit is a structure for building and testing a simple offer.

Automation Checklist

Use automation to remove repeated work. Do not automate a broken offer.

Minimum Setup

- One product file
- One landing page
- One payment link
- One email capture form
- One delivery email
- One content calendar
- One tracking sheet

Daily Automation

- Pull yesterday performance
- Identify posts with response
- Identify posts with no response
- Update strategy memory
- Generate tomorrow content
- Check duplicate posts
- Schedule posts

Weekly Review

- Which topic got the most response?
- Which post format got ignored?
- What question did people ask?
- What objection appeared?
- What product section needs improvement?
- What should be repeated next week?

Guardrails

Never automate fake claims.

Never automate spam replies.

Never publish without duplicate checks.

Never ignore performance data.

Prompt Pack

Buyer Research Prompt

Act like a direct response strategist. Help me choose a buyer for a simple digital product. Ask for five buyer options, then score each by pain, urgency, ability to pay, ease of reaching them, and product simplicity.

Offer Prompt

Turn this buyer problem into five simple digital product offers. Each offer must be specific, useful in one week, and easy to explain in one sentence.

Content Prompt

Create 20 short posts for this offer. Use these buckets: mistakes, systems, examples, contrarian takes, and soft offer posts. Avoid hype, guarantees, hashtags, emojis, and dashes.

Landing Page Prompt

Write a simple landing page for this starter product. Include headline, subheadline, bullets, who it is for, who it is not for, what is included, and a clear call to action. Do not promise income.

Improvement Prompt

Analyze these post results and find patterns. Return winning topics, weak topics, phrases to avoid, formats to repeat, and one product improvement idea.
